

The Nordic Journal of Commercial Law

CALL FOR PAPERS!

The Nordic Journal of Commercial Law is calling for original contributions in the field of commercial law to be published in December 2017 or September 2018. Submissions should address commercial law issues of international, regional or domestic character and be relevant to one or more of the Nordic countries. Relevance could for example be demonstrated by the topic's general applicability to the Nordic commercial sector. All submissions must be in English. All submissions must be followed by a brief summary describing the author's academic qualifications and publication history. Submissions must be sent via e-mail to the secretariat (secretariat@njcl.dk). See the submission guidelines at NJCL.dk for details.

Acceptable topics include, but are not limited to, corporate law, competition law (antitrust), consumer protection, contract law, dispute resolution, intellectual property law, international trade law, labour law, sales law, etc.

NJCL accepts original proposals for the following categories:

- Articles: Manuscripts between 4,000-12,000 words, approximately 15-40 double-spaced pages, are preferred. A table of contents is recommended, especially for lengthy articles.
- Commentaries and reports: Manuscripts for reports, comments and notes should normally range between 900-2700 words, approximately 3-9 double-spaced pages.
- Special issue: A joint proposal of minimum 5 articles designating one or more co-editors, an overarching theme, and an outline of the specific contributions to be included in the special issue together with working titles of each contribution.
